2010 Annual Gingerbread Parade of Homes December 2 thru January 2

The William Paca Society and Eastport Long and Foster Real Estate, Inc. Annapolis-Eastport Office with and on behalf of the Historic Annapolis Foundation are working again this year to celebrate the holiday season with the spicy and exciting 2010 Gingerbread Parade of Homes. The entire community—kids, youth groups, families, adults, architects, designers and professional chefs will be invited to create their interpretation of Gingerbread Houses for downtown city wide display in our gingerbread competition. Professional entries will showcase a specific historical aspect of our area. Last years, Thomas Point Light House by Chef Douglas Matthews of the Inn at Perry Cabin, and the Naval Academy's entry of their Chapel were examples of our other amazing award winning exhibits!!!

Annapolitans and holiday visitors will have the opportunity to visit merchant's shops, restaurants, banks and/or offices to vote on their favorite Ginger House (or boat, building, or fantasy creation!). A Holiday Map will given to the public designating which businesses are this year's exhibitors and their location on the parade route which will extend from Main Street, West Street, and Maryland Avenue to Long and Foster at the bridge.

As a member of the Annapolis Business Community, we invite you to be a part of the celebration by displaying a gingerbread house (or two) in your establishment. Houses, including the base, will be no larger than 11"x14" and 18" tall. Make the "Gingers" part of your festive holiday decorations and a "must see stop" for your patrons!

Raffle:

Two AMAZING entries created by Professional Chefs will be raffled during the Parade of Lights Celebration at Long and Foster on December 11, 2010.

Benefits:
